

Dirty

Press Release

Extreme/Industrial metal legends Aborym, featuring musicians of Emperor and Hour of Penance fame, have released a video-clip for the title-track of their new album, "Dirty". Ironic in its outcome, the video deals with a "distressing and confusional situation, blurring the borderline between nightmares, memories and drug induced hallucinations" (Alberto Falcone, director). Featuring all three band members as well as actors, the clip was filmed in Italy and can be viewed at YouTube: www.youtube.com/watch?v=qKgCWBctM9Y.

Commented by the video director, Alberto Falcone: "At the first listening of Dirty, by Aborym, I got projected in a dark world, where I could see the worst of every human. My aim was to tell a distressing and confusional situation, blurring the borderline between nightmares, memories and drug induced hallucinations. The pub where the story is set becomes populated by different apathetic idiot savants, each and every of them isolated in their own desperation. The few interactions that exist between them turn tragically. And then there's Luna, who stands still and feels passively all that happens and surrounds her. It was a terrific experience to shoot this video and meet the band members of Aborym, especially because I'm a faithful fan since the release of Kali Yuga Bizzare."
